BENATOR MORRILL - This Maine Senator in a recent spaech, said: "Do we not know that Kentucky from the beginning has been a nest of traitors? Do we not know that pobody has been left in Kentucky but the old men, the women and the children? Do we not know that all who could fight and who could get out every four of the able-bodied men of Kentucky are in the rebel ranks."

This is what the children would call a whop per. Every one knows, who knows anything of Kentucky, that not near the half of her able-bodied men have as yet taken up arms on either side. Of those who are acting in the war, it is wel: known that full four to one are in the Federal ranks. This precious Senator was wont to except the imputation of willful lying, on the pretext that he only stated his belief; bu', unfortunately for him, he says he has "reason to believe." This we depy. He has not, never had any reason for any such belief. No bosy before him has ever uttered such a falsehood, or snything approaching it. God knows his Abolition press is sufficien ly addicted in that way; yet we defy him to pro duce from even the dirtiest among them, anything baying even the semblance of so gross a falsehood. We will freely wager good old Bourbon against Down-East rum upon that is ne. He asks "what is the inference" from that calumny of his? We repeat the query-we also ask "what is the inference?" Every gentleman will tell him that the inference is, that he is the sole author-the exclusive inventor, of the falsehoo! His motive is a partisan one of course. He wants to deery Kentucky, because he believes that her people have an utter soorn and detestation for Abolitionists. This we shall not deny, for it may be true that they are more perfectly unanimous in that that in any other political feeling. They believe that leading Abolitionists are as much responsible for this war as leading rebels, and responsible for this war as leading rebels. responsible for this war as leading rebels, and are, therefore, equally deserving the national execuation.

Does he want to compare claims to patriot. firm in Philadelphia. ism between Kentucky and Maine, or any other New England State? His friends will not permit him to be guilty of anything so impudent. The Union men of Kentucky need make no boast for themselves. Such men as Millard Filmore have said their patriotism is "as pure as thrice driven snow." The lying tongue of all the Abolition Morrill's can't soil that reputation.

We had hoped that New England was trying to live down the national odium and bad repute for patriotism which she carned by ber during the last war with England. She sure at bome. Ir connot hone that the nation has already for gotten that conduct; that she was the first to upo en, and but for the opportune peace, would have been the first to enact secession; this, too, in favor of an all-powerful and most detestable foreign enemy; a secession as much more dishonerable and hatoful than that of the present day-hateful as that is, than would be the desertion of an army in the presence of an enemy, when compared with its mutiny in time of peace. If canny New England will cast a short view ahead, she will see that she is in no condition to make enemica. It is on the cards, that this war may result in new combinations of States, based on the enduring bond of mutual commercial interests. That, should it come, would be an ngly day for New England. No State west of the Hudson would seek her alliance. Interest certainly would not, and sympathy could not oppose the motive; for what sympathy can there be with a preacher-ridden people, who have given themselves up to the guidance of their fanatics and their strong-minded women? Should that direful day ever come, Kentucky

General Sumper and General Franklin both confirm the opinion of Barnside that the estack on Fredericksburg would have been side intended. Summer said he would have orossed the river and co-upled the positions the enemy seized afterward, if he had had the means of crossing. Franklin confirms that opinion fully. The means of crossing could have been there if Halleck had done his duty. Halleck soys it was Burnside's business to attend to the transportation of the pontoons. The testimony puts this excuse of Halleck out of the question. Burnside takes the responsibility of the battle on himself; but the failure is due to Halleck.

Now that all the facts are known, the public will acquit General Burnside of blame, or at least excuse him. His plan was a good one. It required celerity in its execution. He reached the Rappahannock and found that the main provision for celerity in his advance had not been made, by the negligence of his superior officer. He resolved by a heroic effort to overcome the obstacles which loss of time had thrown in his way. He made the effort, and failed. If he had made no effort when he saw his plan marred, he would have been blamed by his superiors, and perhaps by the country.

The proclamation of General Fremont, under the date of the 80th of August, transcends, and of course violates, the law, and declares that the property of rebels, whether used in support of the rebellion or not, shall be consupport of the rebellion or not, shall be con-ficated; and if consisting in slaves, that they shall be at once manumitie. You may, therefore, well judge of the slarm and condemnation with which the Union loving citizens of Kentucky, the State with whose popular sentiment I am best acquainted, have read this proclamation. The hope is estroetly indulged by them, as it is by myself, that this paper was issued under the pressure of a military necessity which General Frement believed justified this step, but that in the particulars specified it has not your approbation, and will of Col. McHenry, of the 17th Kentucky regiment, recently dismissed or discharged from the service by the President, you ask this question-"If he is only d sch rged, has not Governor Robinson power to re-appoint?"

Governor Robinson has been, it seems, appointing officers of different grades; but it ap pears to me he has been seeing without au thority of law in doing so. Article 7, sections and 3, of the new Constitution of Kentucky, read as follows:

"2.1. The Governor shall appoint the Adia tant General and his other staff officers; the Mejor Generals, Brigadier Generals, and com mendants of regiments shall respectively ap-point their staff officers; and commandants of companies shall appoint their non-commis signed officers.

"3d. All milita officers, whose appointment is not herein otherwise provided for, shall be elected by persons subject to military duty within their respective companies, battallons, regiments brigades, and divisions, under such rules and regulations, and for such terms not exceeding six years, as the General Assembly may, from time to time, direct and cetablish."

Is there now any law, or can one be passed by the Legislature, to take away from the men the right to elect their own officers? I think not. The Legislature has not attempted to Legislature, as well as of military men.

The Constitution of the United States gives Congress power to provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws, &c; to provide for organizing an army and disciplining the milits, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the Valted States, reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the disci-

of training the militia according to the disci-pline presented by Congress.

By the Constitution of the United States the President becomes Commander-in-Chief of the millida of the several States, when called into the actual service of the United States. Under that power, I suppose he may dismiss an officer; but I see nothing but such respect as the men may feel for the President to prevent their electing the dismissed officer to bis former place.

He nor the Governor have no more right to He nor the Governor have no more right to interfere in the election, or prevent the men voting for their dismissed officers, than Congress or a Leg-slature could prevent the re-election of a di-missed member. In the des-potism of the military service the regiment might be dismissed the service for such ay act; but it would not, and could not, be considered mutinous or in violation of any army regula-

For one, I honor Colonel McHenry for his order in relation to slaves. true rame—they will, is no wise, be dirhonored to being dismissed from the service.

Another question just here. What right, nuder the Constitution of the United States and of Kentucky, has Congress or the President to appoint any officers over Kentucky troops? If the call on Kentucky was for enough troops to make a brigade, did not the right at once exist with the troops to elect their Brigadier General? If for a division, their Major General? If because a call is made for regiments no higher officer can be elected by the men than a Colonel, then a call for one hundred companies would reduce their rights to the election of no higher officer than Cap to the election of no higher officer than Cap

The Adventures of a Girl Soldier who Fought in the Battles of Shiloh and Perryville.

We have all read more than once during this rebellien the story of some femme mili-tairs, whose heroism is deing service for the Union was only equaled by her intense devo-tion to a corarade. And in the yet unwritten tion to a corrade. And in the yet unwritten history of the war these women will form the heroines of many a refreshing negrative, to lesses the tedium of marches and battles, and building of bridges. There was one of them at the Poilee Court yesterday—a sad culmination of an overflowing cup of suffering and self-denial. The poor girl said that her rame was Mary Fraccis; she could not have been more than nineteer, and was slender and blonde. She might have been handsome before her military service commenced, but totmore than nine eer, and was slender and blonde. She might have been handsome before her military service commenced, but toil source marches and sentry watchings, and exposure to wind and storm, had robbed her of her charms. More than all she chewed tobactory to the charms. But after all she is not to be blamed for The dispiriting monotony of camp life has given many of the a ronger sex to drunk-

The girl soldier was arrested near Camp
Douglas, in this city, a day or two ago. A guard had fusulted her. She attacked the guard and whipped him—brave defender that he was. Thence her present sorrows proceeded. She was froned, taken to the Armory, and there arraigned at the moreing session of the

After the latter battle she was placed in hospital at Louis-ville, and it was then that her sex was first discovered. Although the wound she had re-ceived was of a serious kind, yet private Mary Francis, who had fought in two battles, was still brave of heart, and rallying from disease she speedily convalenced. As soon as she had recovered, the military authorities gave h-r transportation to Columbus, Ohio. She visited that place and was cruelly received by her stepfather. Having several dollars left from her ace and was cruelly received by her step-Having several dollars left from her military wages, she determined to buy a pas-sage to Chicago, in the hop s of securing em-ployment in this greateity. Arriving here the above mentioned mishap befell her at Camp

She was questioned closely several times on all these facts, but there was no difference in the answer. Her statement was evidently the plain unexaggerated truth, while a book could have been filted with the minor details of her experience. See refused to sssign any motive for her collistment—simply said that she liked the service, and that was all. The girl then reseated herself in the prisoner's box, emptied another handful of tobacco into her mouth, and resigned herself to her fate. Judge Miller, in consideration of her patri otic services, ordered the defendant to be dis-charged, but expressed the hope that some people in Chicago would be charitable enough to take in the erring girl and give her employ-

About the town are found large numbers of guns, knapsacks, havarancks, crackers, salt pork, and at least one hundred thousand rounds of good cartifiges. They also left behind them, in and about the town, at the very least, six hundred of their dead. There are one analysis of their dead. There are one and three of these dead on a space of less than an acre of ground. The town was largely used for hospital purpose by the Yarkers, and, in the haste of departure, some twenty of their wounded were left behind.

The Yankees essayed a task which no army ever marshaled or that ever will be organized could have accomplished. To have driven our men from their position and to have taken it, was a work compared with which the storm-ing of Gibraltar would be as child's play. To appreciate the strongth of our position it must be seen. Suffice it to say that we had "Stone-wall." at both ends of the line—Jackson on the right, and the stone fence on the left, at Fredericksburg. No other man than Burnside would have attempted so difficult or so fool hardy an adventure. NARROW ESCAPE OF GEN. JACKSON. General Stonewall Jackson, who many almost believe leads a charmed life, had a very narrow escape. He was watching the battle, and standing at the time near an oak tree, when a bullet struck not more than two inches from his head. The old hero continued his observations unmoved by the incident. I have been at some pains to ascertain our loss, and as the result of my effort, have obtained from Dr. J. C. Horndon, the polite Surgeon on Gen. Lee's staff, the following statement, which may be relied upon as correct:

A HEART RENDING SCANS. - On Thursday A HEART RENDING SCANA.—On Thursday last the Comet put into the harbor of Garliestown, and tock the ground on a sand bank at a short distance from the quay. Next day, as the tide was flowing, five men were engaged in docking the vessel, when a person standing on the quay observed that she was about to keel over. He forthwith gave the alarm, and four out of the five succeeded in keeping clear; the fifth, a man named William Loch, was caught by the hull of the vessel as it went over, the bullwarks resting on his loins, leaven over, the bulwarks resting on his loins, leaving his head, arms, and the upper part of his body free. Our special correspondert at Washirg on seade us a somewhat full account of the late ught between Stanton and Hall-ck, mentioned in the last I-tier of the World's correspondent. The affair took place in the War Department fulldings, and was an exceedingly spirit ed one. But for the timely interference of the artherities, it might have resulted in the last I-tier of the World's correspondent. The affair took place in the War Department fulldings, and was an exceedingly spirit ed one. But for the timely interference of the artherities, it might have resulted in the unter extinction of the combatans. I had no connection whatever with political or warliske matters, having grown out of a little fairstanding in regard to a commercial transaction.

It seems that Halleck and Stanton had trade lack kidves, "unsight unseen," and Halleck heing chested thereby, wished to trade back. To this Stanton would not agree, and c. rise quarrily Hall got mad all of a adden, and fold whip him. E3, retorted that the Hall-ck who could whip him wash'lyet born into the world, and followed up tails assertion with a sound kick in the rear of the enearly's works.

The battle now became general, Halleck of inkstands and paper-w-ights, which, now ever, were simed too tigh, and did not amage beyond the demolishing of a few lights of glass. At this moment there was a momentary cressation of hos littles—E4 mistaking a portion of Hel's shirt, that drooped from he rear of his position, for a flig of trace.
